NEW YORK PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS SENT MESSAGE TO CANDIDATE AT COLUMBUS.

GOVERNOR IS PLEASED

Wires Rudolph Spreckels His Appreciation of Support From Progressives in a Common Cause.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 20.—Invading President Taft's state Governor Wilson today opened the Ohio democratic campaign with fifteen speeches and he was assisted by Congressman Jas. M. Cox, candidate for governor and Senator Gore of Oklahoma.
Governor Wilson's stay in Columbus from the time he arrived to the time of his departure today will be occupied in making speeches conferring with lieutenant organizers and a reception to the public. The candidate arrived at 8:15 three hours ahead of his schedule and there was no one at the depot to meet him.
At one o'clock Governor Wilson and Mr. Cox addressed an organized meeting in Memorial Hall and at two he addressed an educational association in a local theatre. At 3:15 a meeting of business men and commercial salesmen in the city hall and at four a public reception were held.
Senator Gore and Mr. Cox will head a parade at 5:30 which will march through the principal streets of the city to the Memorial Hall where a big meeting will be held at 7:30. Governor Harmon who returned yesterday from his vacation will preside at the night meeting and will introduce the presidential nominee.
Indorses Wilson League.
Coincident with the opening of the democratic campaign in Ohio today, Gov. Woodrow Wilson gave his hearty approval to the formation today in New York of the Wilson national progressive republican league.
The governor and Rudolph Spreckels, now in New York, in charge of the movement, exchanged the following telegrams, made public today by the nominees.
"New York, Sept. 19, 1912. Governor Woodrow Wilson, Columbus, O.: Eastern headquarters of the Wilson national progressive republican league were opened today in the Metropolitan building, New York. Our league was founded by progressive republicans who hope to save the progressive movement that was started some years ago in the republican party, but which is now being betrayed by the organization of Col. Roosevelt's third term party. Under these conditions you alone deserve the support of true progressives who place principles above partyism."
"Our membership is wholly republican, but we feel justified in voting and working for your election since the candidate of the republican party does not represent the progressive majority in that party and Roosevelt's candidacy is hopeless and only serves to divide our progressive forces." Signed, Rudolph Spreckels.
"To which Gov. Wilson replied: "Your telegram received telling me of the formation of the Wilson national progressive republican league, gave me the deepest gratification and encouragement. The action you and your associates are taking seems to me truly patriotic."
Object in Common.
"The progressive forces of the nation ought not to be divided. No mere attachment to a party name should now separate men whose purposes and convictions are united for a common object. The formation of the league seems to me one of the most reassuring indications of the temper of thoughtful men. May I not convey to you my congratulations on your own part in the movement? Signed, Woodrow Wilson."

The committee said that brewers are facing famine prices for raw material because of the increasing demand for malting barley and the decreased production due to soil exhaustion and the withdrawal of land from cultivation. The committee reported that it had established development bureaus for the benefit of the farmers in nearly 300 counties.

OTHER STATES MAY BECOME INVOLVED IN MINERS' STRIKE

Head of Utah Union Contemplates Calling Out Men in Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico in Sympathy.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Salt Lake City, Sept. 20.—Charles H. Howe Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners announced today that the federation might call out the union men employed at the Nevada Consolidated properties at Ely, Nev., the Ray Consolidated at Kelton, Ariz., and the Chino at Santa Rita, N. Mex., which are controlled by the Utah copper interests.

"We are contemplating such a move," president Moyer said, "and have a man on the way to Ely to take up the matter there. D. C. Jackling, manager of the Utah Copper Company properties refuses to recognize the union in Utah and we see no reason why union men in other states should work for him. The men have some pride and are unwilling to work where they are not wanted. In fact the miners at the Nevada Consolidated at Ely, Nev., are ready to go out at a moment's notice."

The Nevada Consolidated mine employs about 3,500 men. At the Chino, Santa Rita, N. Mex., 500 men are employed and the Ray Consolidated has several hundred. The Nevada Consolidated and Chino like the Utah copper of Bingham, are worked with steam shovels at the surface and most of the labor is unskilled.

Bingham, Utah, Sept. 20.—Sixty-two hundred is the number of men who compose the army of mine workers made idle by the strike in the mines here Wednesday, and present indications are that this number will be increased unless the solution of the difficulties is brought about within the next few days.

The situation today is practically the same as when the strike was called and there appears to be little possibility of an agreement between the miners and the operators soon. Forty-five hundred of the idle men are strikers; the remaining 1700 are those forced out of work when the concentrating mills at Garfield closed down last night for lack of ore.

"The Greeks who until yesterday were fortified in the trenches over the mines have remained true to their promise to Governor Spry to give up the stronghold, but have not decreased their vigilance on the mines. There was considerable rioting last night and today several shots were exchanged between deputy sheriffs and those attempting to cross the highways leading into the hills.

Many of the American miners and mechanics who were opposed to the strike have left the camp and are taking no action in the strike.

D. C. Jackling, general manager of the Utah Copper company, returned to his office here today. He said: "The strikers at Bingham do not represent the sentiment of a majority of the employees. We will see that the men who want work are given protection."

STATE MOOSERS MAY PLACE INDEPENDENT MEN IN THE FIELD

Scheme Now Proposed Also Embraces Endorsement of All Progressive Candidates, Democratic or Republican.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—The Bull Moose managers are considering the plan of putting independent progressive candidates in the field for office, wherever a progressive has been snowed under at the primaries. The scheme that is being considered embraces the endorsement of all progressive candidates, whether they be democrats or republicans.

One of the leading Bull Mooseers of the state declared that he was in favor of putting up a candidate for congress to oppose Congressman J. H. Davidson of Oshkosh, who defeated J. N. Titterton, a progressive, and one against John J. Bach of La Crosse, who defeated A. H. Dahl.

The idea is now in its inception and has not been fully worked out by Bull Mooseers, but they claim that in this state will be formulated in the next two weeks.

The plan talked of thus far would include a scrutiny of all legislative as well as congressional candidates. According to the law the Bull Mooseers have until about the middle of October to decide if they want to place a ticket in the field.

Quite 1,000 names are being petitioned to nominate the presidential electors so that they may be placed on the independent ballot.

C. K. Lush, one of the leading Bull Mooseers of the state, who has been here to attend the political conventions, returned to Milwaukee last night. Lush declined to comment on the political situation.

NICARAGUA REBELS CAPTURE SAN JORGE; FEDERALS HAVE LOSS

Federal Force is Wiped Out. Transfer of Gibson From Havana Severely Criticized.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Juan del Sur, Sept. 20.—Nicaraguan revolutionists yesterday attacked and captured the town of San Jorge on Lake Nicaragua, five miles east of Rivas, the capital of the most southerly department on the Pacific side of Nicaragua. While the rebel gunboats bombarded San Jorge, another force of insurgents attacked Rivas, cutting telegraph wires to San Juan del Sur and gradually forcing the government troops to fall back on the town of Cuarte.

When the rebel attack slackened the government troops captured a rapid firing gun and used it with such deadly effect that the rebels were forced to retreat. The fight lasted five hours and both sides suffered many casualties.

Federal Force Wiped Out.
Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 20.—It is reported that the entire command of federalists under Col. Obregon was wiped out by rebels in a battle at San Joaquin ranch today. Those not killed were reported taken prisoners by the rebels.

Quiet on Rio Grande.
Washington, Sept. 20.—Brigadier-General Steever reported to the war department today from Fort Bliss that Captain Benjamin, whom he had sent to watch the Bosque Bonita section for Orozco and his band had patroled the Rio Grande for eighteen miles without sight of the rebels. They were reported headed toward Juarez.

General Steever has sent three troops of the 13th cavalry to reinforce Capt. Benjamin's forces.

Critic's Transfer of Gibson.
Havana, Sept. 20.—The Cuban newspapers this morning merely printed the Washington dispatch announcing the transfer of Hugh S. Gibson, at present charge de affairs of the American legation at Havana to be secretary of the United States legation at Brussels without making any comment on the diplomatic change editorially. Americans who have long resided in the island deplore the transfer at this juncture which follows so closely on the Reilly claim incident and attack made upon the diplomat by the Cuban journalist Masas, as they believe it will be misinterpreted by Cubans as an indication despite the public explanations of Washington that the United States disapproved of Mr. Gibson's conduct and that it is prepared to make any sacrifice rather than incur the ill will of Cuba.

POLITICAL PAMPHLET COPY DUE THURSDAY

Candidates Desiring "Write-ups" in Second State Bulletin Must Rush Their Articles.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—The forthcoming week is expected to witness a great flood of mail into the office of the secretary of state as copy for the forthcoming political pamphlet which the state now prepares and publishes under the corrupt practices act. Under the law copy election pamphlet must be in the hands of the secretary of state not later than the close of office on Sept. 26 which is the fourth day preceding election. As the state central committees are permitted to use this pamphlet for the setting forth of reasons why the principles and candidates they favor should be given preference these new bodies will have to be up and going in getting their material in shape within the required time.

According to the law 400,000 pamphlets, a different one for each of the 33 senate districts of the state, must be compiled, printed and mailed within thirty days after Sept. 26. Candidates are permitted to use both cuts and reading material. According to the secretary of state, statements intended for a single page should not contain more than 400 words if a portrait cut is to be used, and not to exceed 600 words where a cut is not desired. Candidates for state or congressional offices and presidential electors may use two pages by paying an additional fee. Each candidate for one of these offices must pay $300 for the first page and $150 for the second. Candidates for the state senate are assessed $50 and candidates for the assembly $20. State central committees also must pay $300 a page. Proposed constitutional amendments are printed free.

Owing to the limitation of expenses to which a candidate is bound for him may, candidates will have to "go light" between now and November as in some instances they spent nearly their limit in the primary campaign.

The total amounts that may be spent "by or on behalf of any candidate" follows:
For United States Senator, $7,500; for member of Congress, $2,500; for governor, judge of the supreme court or state superintendent of schools, $5,000; for state state officers, $2,000; for state senator, $400 and for member of the assembly, $150.

TODAY'S RACES PUT OVER TO TUESDAY; TRACK IS TOO WET

After Waiting Until Nearly Two O'clock for Fair Weather Milwaukee Management Decides on Postponement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Wauwatosa Race Course, Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 20.—After waiting until nearly two o'clock this afternoon for fair weather, the Pabst and Wisconsin trophy races were postponed until Tuesday because of the wet condition of the course. It was announced, however, that the Vanderbilt race would be run tomorrow and the Grand Prix on Monday.

The start of the two races on today's program were postponed early in the morning from twelve o'clock to two o'clock in the hopes that the course would be in condition.

Drivers and officials made a number of circuits of the course before the hour set for the start and after a joint conference in the judges' stand decided the roadway was too wet for a fair degree of safety.

A brisk wind was blowing, however, and the sun had broken through the fog which hung over the course during the early morning hours. The officials said they believed the course would be sufficiently dried out by two o'clock to permit of high speed without danger of serious accident.

Thousands of people lined the course and despite announcement of the delayed start remained in the grandstand and parking places.

Men, You Have Got to Help Your Families Run Their Homes on Business Lines

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager
Wanamaker's, Philadelphia.

THE home is a business as much as the factory, and it must be systematized. A shrewd Jewish business man recently said: "To acquire happiness in life, a man must be successful along three different lines. He must be a success in his business, a success in his health and a success in his family."

Now there are just thousands of you men reading this paper today who are not a success in your families. It is safe to say that over eighty per cent of you men in America know nothing about the expenditures of your families except when you see the bills.

You have got to stop this sort of thing or you'll wreck the nation. A few weeks ago in Chicago, a little woman with four babies wrote a pitiful note, and later they found her a suicide in the park. She just couldn't find out how to keep her expenses down. Her allowance was $250 a month, but it might as well have been $2,000 for all

PLAN A RECEPTION FOR THE FRESHMEN

Committee Named for Annual Affair
Given by High School Seniors—
Other School News.
A meeting of the senior class was called by President Benjamin Kuhlman yesterday afternoon for the purpose of putting to vote the question of whether or not the seniors would give a banquet in honor of the freshman class. It has been a custom in the past years to entertain the youngest class of the school, and the vote was unanimous in favor of doing so, but no date has yet been set for the occasion. Two weeks will probably pass before the plans will be arranged.
Committees were appointed by the seniors. They are as follows:
On Entertainment: Hazel Meyer,
Alta Fifield, Fred Cummings, Frank Blodgett.
On Arrangements: Harold Mohr,
Lucile Hyde, Ralph Soultman, Ruth Wilkinson.
Magazines on File.
Magazines are being placed on file for the use of the juniors and seniors.
If they are handled well by these upper classes, a trial for their use will also be given to the two lower classes.
Such publications as the Scientific American, Technical World, Outing, Literary Digest, Outlook, and World's Work are on the list which are now on file. Students may read any of these during school hours, providing they do not interfere with their studies. Care is taken not to injure these books, as many use them, and Prof. Buell stated that if the students were careless with them, the privilege would have to be taken away from them.

Hear Fine Lecture.
The Laurean and Philanthropic societies met together yesterday afternoon to listen to a lecture given by Mrs.
Hall, who has returned from an extended trip to Panama. Slides were shown on the screen by means of the microscope. She spoke of the sanitation of the Canal Zone, and of the many cases which succumb to malaria, that dreadful disease which prevails in this region the year round. Authorities state that mosquitoes are at the bottom of this disease, and doctors are hastening to oust them from the country. The government has now obtained control of all amusement places here and also the meat houses, ice houses and even the saloons.
The girls listened with attentive ear and appreciated the lecture to its fullest extent.

INTOXICATED MAN DISTURBS SHARON STREET RESIDENTS

David Laird Mistakes House for His Home and Attempts to Sleep on Front Porch.
Mistaking the house of a Sharon street resident for his home, David Laird last night attempted to go to sleep there and awoke the occupants who telephoned to the police at 12:30 this morning that a crazy man was raising a disturbance in the neighborhood. The police hurried to the place in an automobile but found the supposedly crazy man was merely drunk. This morning he was arraigned in the Municipal Court and on his plea of guilty was sentenced to pay a fine of $4 and costs or spend seven days in jail. He was not able to pay his fine.
Albert Teubert of Edgerton plead guilty to a similar charge and paid a fine of $2 and costs.
E. House, arrested for the same offense, was given the choice of a $4 fine and eight days in jail.

OBSERVE LOSS OF TEMPORAL POWER OF PAPACY IN ROME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Rome, Sept. 20.—The forty-second anniversary of the entry of the Italian troops into Rome and the fall of the temporal power of the papacy was the occasion today for the consistory patriotic demonstrations and holiday observance. During the day immense crowds visited the historic Porta Pia, through which the Italian troops made their entrance into the capital. The several monuments of Victor Emmanuel, Garibaldi, Gavour, Mazzini, and other notable fight figures in the Italian struggle for independence were beautifully decorated with flowers.

HALL & HUEBEL

Bob Moha got his first glimpse of Boston when he went to fight Billy Papke in that city. Accompanied by his manager, Tom Larkin, Bob arrived in the city of culture and beans the afternoon before the battle was to take place.

Moha had finished his training and Larkin, figuring that a short walk would keep the caveman on edge, approached Bob after dinner as he lounged in a chair in the hotel lobby.

"Come on, Bob," he said, "we'll take a walk around and see Bunker Hill."

"What for?" replied Bob. "I don't know the guy."

"Hans Wagner is the greatest ball player of all times," is the sweet bouquet thrown at the flying Dutchman by Secretary Will Locke of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "Why?" asks Locke. "Think of a man who has been playing ball in the league for thirteen years and has yet to have his first argument with his manager. If any kind of a prize is to be given out this season for the best player in the National League I don't see how they can overlook Hans. He hits, runs and fields as well as ever in his life."

President Charlie Murphy of the Chicago Cubs has come out strong for the strenuous life in baseball. He frowns darkly upon the custom of visiting players visiting with home players when they meet on the diamond, and says that's got to be abolished. Then, too, he would have players run to their positions instead of loafing.

"People like to see a show of life," says Murphy. "Ball players are among the best athletes in the world. There should be vim and lots of action in every movement. It would be appreciated by the fans and make the game more popular. Let's have rivalry from the moment the men doff their street clothes for the uniforms. Let's have action, a show of hustle and bustle every moment after the game begins."

The Carlisle Indian school will put out a first-rate football team this season with Jim Thorpe at its head. Of last year's team there will only be four missing: Roberts, left end; Newashe, left tackle; Jordan, left guard; Lone Star, right tackle. All the other old stars will be in their places, shining with their usual brilliancy. About fifty candidates for the team are in the field.

Tommy Burns, former heavyweight champ, and Jim Flynn were matched for a bout, but Burns discovered a few days ago that business reasons would keep him from the fight. Lucky for him.

WORLD'S SERIES TO BEGIN ON MONDAY, OCTOBER SEVENTH

National Commission Meets On Monday To Arrange Details For Games Between Giants And Red Sox.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Sept. 20.—The world's championship series of baseball games are to begin on Monday, Oct. 7th. This is the date definitely agreed upon by the national commission which meets here next Monday to draft plans for the games.

The date for the series has been based upon the assumption that the New York Nationals and the Boston Americans would win the pennants in their respective leagues. The Boston Cubs have won one pennant and the Giants expect to win one within the next ten days.

The closing session of the Boston Red Sox and the New York Giants will close on Oct. 5th and this will give them one day's rest before the big game, which is deemed sufficient. An early start of the series is desired to take advantage of good weather.

It is learned that the commission has practically decided to play two games in each city. The club owners will toss a coin to decide which city shall have the opening game.

EASTERN FOOTBALL SEASON IS AT HAND

Carlisle Indians to Play Albright College Tomorrow—Yale's First Game Next Wednesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Sept. 20.—The football season of 1912 will be ushered in tomorrow with contests at several of the Eastern colleges. One week hence the season will be on in earnest and from that time until the curtain falls on the Army and Navy contest on November 30 the pigskin spheroid will be booted and pursued from ocean to ocean and from the lakes to the gulf.

The Carlisle Indians are the only big team to get into the fray tomorrow, being scheduled for a contest with Albright College. Yale will play its first game next Wednesday with Wesleyan and on the same day Cornell will open its season with Allegheny. On the following Saturday Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Dartmouth and nearly all of the other Eastern colleges, both big and little, will appear in regular scheduled contests on the gridiron. Following the usual custom the season among the Western colleges will not begin until several weeks after the debut of the Eastern teams.

The governing powers have provided new rules for this year, rules which are a pronounced departure from the various sets which have been tried and found wanting in the past. The new code points to more of a rushing game and by the same token a game which will be more satisfactory in producing more scoring. The season, therefore, will be in a way experimental, and the battles, especially the early ones, will be watched with additional interest.

CONSERVATIVES TO CELEBRATE THE DEFEAT OF RECIPROCITY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Montreal, Sept. 20.—Acting on a suggestion of Premier Borden, the Liberal-Conservative Association of this city is preparing for a public demonstration tomorrow night in celebration of the first anniversary of the defeat of the proposed reciprocity agreement with the United States. The demonstration will take the form of a political meeting which will be addressed by several Conservative party leaders of national prominence.

Fire Police Estimate Annual Saving of $720 Through Substitution For Two Horse Wagons.

An annual saving to the city of $720 through the substitution of a motor driven combination chemical and hose wagon for the horse drawn Fire Police patrol wagon and hose wagon at the east side fire station is estimated by the Fire Police in their communication to the City Council to be submitted at a future meeting. The cost of the present equipment per annum is estimated at $2,560, of the proposed motor equipment $2,810. It is believed that the equipment desired can be purchased for $6,000 and that $1,250 credit will be given for the present equipment.

The communication in full is as follows:

"To his honor, the Mayor and the Council of Jansville:

In order to increase the efficiency, decrease the cost, and greatly improve the sanitary condition of the Jansville fire department, the Fire Police beg to submit the following proposition; to wit:

First—Dispose of teams and wagons belonging to the Fire Police and East Side Hose Company.

Second—Purchase a motor driven combination chemical and hose wagon; this truck to carry all the equipment now carried by the Fire Police and Hose Company with such additions as may be necessary to make it a fully equipped fire fighting machine.

We estimate the annual cost to the city of the present east side station to be as follows:

Maintenance of Fire Police (annual appropriation) $1000.00
Maintenance of team, (feed and bedding) 400.00
Maintenance of Hose Company team, (feed and bedding) 400.00
Shoeing, harness repairs, etc., for Hose Co. team 50.00
Salary of 2 men at $65 month each 1560.00
Stable repairs and sundries 50.00
Depreciation in value of team (Cost $1,000 at 10 per cent 100.00
Total $3560.00
We estimate the cost of the proposed equipment per annum to be as follows:

Oil and gasoline, based on fire insurance from Rockford Trust 100.00
Salary of three men at $65, $2340.00
Depreciation on cost of apparatus ($6,000 at 6% per cent 400.00
Total $2840.00
A saving per annum of $720.00
Cost of securing above equipment (motor truck) $6000.00
Credit for present equipment: Two wagons, 500.00
Four horses, $750.00
This expenditure saves to the city $720 per annum, of 15.1 on the investment.

The Fire Police make the above recommendations with the understanding that the motor truck responds to every alarm and that same be in every sense a conveyance for them as was their equipment.

At a special meeting of the Fire Police held September 10, 1912, the above propositions were unanimously adopted and the undersigned were instructed to present them for your consideration.

A VICTORY FOR THE PEOPLE.

As illustrating what is commendable in political platform building, and what is in marked contrast with the shiftiness recognized as characteristic of cheap politicians, the income tax plank of the Wisconsin democratic state platform adopted yesterday at Madison may be cited as a model.

After declaring in favor of a national income tax as proposed in the democratic platform adopted at Baltimore, it proceeds as follows:

"We are opposed to the present state income tax foisted upon the people of the state by the republican party in the last session of the legislature. It is admittedly defective, unjust, unfair and inquisitorial and discriminating against the interest of the entire people of this state. It works out to the interest of the tax dodger, and not to the interest of the taxpayer. Its ratification by the people was refused by the party in power. We promise its immediate repeal."

"The plank is in line with the ringing speeches which Judge Karel, the democratic candidate for governor, and H. W. Bolens, the democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor, delivered during the campaign preceding the primary. It is not at all like the plank on the income tax which democratic professional politicians proposed and vainly fought for. It is not like the plank on the income tax which is in the republican state platform, and on which Governor McGovern, who signed the income tax bill, will be a candidate for re-election."

"In harmony with this commitment of the democratic party to the repeal of the state income tax law is its demand for the radical diminution of the expenses of state government, by reducing the large army of unnecessary officeholders and employees, and by limiting the expenses to the necessary and strictly public purposes of state government administered according to business methods."

"The people of all parties are in favor of the policies set forth in these declarations and represented by Judge Karel and Mr. Bolens. Professional politicians of all parties are opposed to them. The victory which Karel and Bolens won over the professional politicians at Madison yesterday, like that which they won at the recent primary, was a victory of the people. The people will array themselves against the professional politicians in the approaching campaign for state offices in Wisconsin."

The Evening Wisconsin, one of the old, staunch republican papers of the state, thus endorses the democratic state platform. The taxpayers, regardless of party, are interested in the brand of reform, which the platform outlines, and as the republicans of the state are largely political orphans, having been deserted by the men supposed to represent them, there can be no cause for complaint if they line up in an effort to reform the reformers.

The fact is generally conceded that McGovern, the so-called republican candidate for governor, will support the new party and vote for Roosevelt, while La Follette, who never forgets a grievance, will support neither Taft nor Roosevelt, but if he votes at all, on national issues, will vote the democratic ticket.

These two conspicuous leaders can offer no complaint, if the rank and file of the party adopt the same independent policy on state issues. The grievance of Wisconsin republicans is not a personal grievance. They have been betrayed and misrepresented by the men selected to serve them, and in so doing have forfeited every claim for support.

Colonel Roosevelt makes no claim to being a republican, and Governor Wilson is a full-fledged democrat, yet the governor of the state, who aspires to succeed himself, is committed to the colonel, while the senator, who presides over the destinies of the commonwealth, refuses to endorse his national party administration. The chickens are liable to come home to roost, in November.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Sereno S. Pratt, in his text-book on "The Work of Wall Street," thus defines the difference between investing, speculating and gambling:

"An investment is an operation based on sight or knowledge.

"A speculation is an operation based on faith.

"A gamble is an operation based on chance."

The definitions are so terse that any intelligent mind may comprehend them, but he goes on to explain how they apply to Wall street the same as they apply to all other lines of business. He says:

"The true distinction between stock speculation and gambling lies not in the act performed, but in the state of mind of the man performing it. What he means is this: Three men buy 1,000 shares of Pennsylvania stock. A buys for investment, intending to keep for the income from dividends. B, after intelligent study of railroad, market and general business conditions, buys the stock in order to be able to sell later at a higher price, just as a merchant may buy a million yards of cotton sheeting with the intention of selling later at profit. Both may or may not employ their credit in making the purchase, but the operation is a speculation. C buys the stock blindly. He simply bets that the price will advance. In A's case the risk is small; in B's case the risk is large but intelligent; in C's case the transaction is all risk, mere blind chance."

The Wall Street Journal adds:

"There seems little need to elaborate upon this. Speculation is a necessary part of all progressive business. If it were not for the speculator, the investor would have few enough opportunities, and would, in fact, become a speculator himself. The speculator who risks his money in the development of real estate, or the opening of mining prospects, lays the foundation for future investment. It may be said, in fact, that the first speculator long antedated the first investor; and that the development of the United States, particularly as regards railroad enterprise, but in the mining and in the industrial departments also, is where it is and what it is today, largely by reason of speculation."

There is another fact which should not be overlooked, namely that pretty much everything connected with life is a gamble, as the investor as well as the speculator frequently find to their sorrow.

The woman who takes a husband is liable to discover that she has drawn a blank, and many husbands are free to admit that marriage is a lottery.

The farmer who sows his grain is assured of seed time and harvest, but results are often disappointing, yet the fact remains that the men who take chances, based on faith, are the men who win, as a rule, in the race.

There are times when it pays to let well enough alone, and as the campaign advances, the sober thinking people of the country are asking the question, "What is to be gained by a change of administration?" and an echo is the only answer. Times were never better than they are today. Both labor and capital are liberally employed. What more could be asked? The democratic party is out and wants to get in, and Colonel Roosevelt is in the same position, but this is no argument in favor of a change, which at the best can only be disturbing. This sentiment is growing and it will control at the November election.

If McGovern votes for Roosevelt and La Follette for Wilson, is there any reason why they shouldn't be classed as independent voters? Is there any more reason why every republican voter in the state should not enjoy the same independence, in dealing with the state ticket. Sauce for the goose and the gander belong in the same dish.

One of the fool laws passed by congress, prohibits American railroads from using the Panama canal. This means that our large fleet of freighters, mostly the property of railroads, will be compelled to go out of business, simply because they fly the American flag. That's the sort of regulation that curses the country.

The democratic candidate for president has acquired a nickname, and will now rank with the boys as "Woody." That ought to help some, but "Teddy" and "Billy" have the start of him, and the people will be slow to adopt the new title.

The erratic colonel is now in favor of recalling everything in sight, including the president, which seems to be about the only obstacle left. He has disposed of both the republican and democratic parties, as well as of the courts, and proposes to be a law unto himself.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

How Time Flies.

"I can't stay long fellers. I told my wife I'd be home by 9 o'clock."

"Aie, too, Steve, I gotta snuff this game at 9 sharp. Shake up the paste-boards, Bill."

"I'm just like you two fellers. It was hard enough to get away as it was and I gotta hit the feathers before 10 o'clock or it's home to mother for my wife. Gee, this is a punk hand. Two bits."

"Aw, stick around awhile. You three fellers make me weary. Every time I'm the host you all gotta duck before I win enough to pay for the lights."

10 p. m.

"This is positively the last hand for me, Rupert. My wife'll kill me. Gee, ain't there anything in that deck but cat-crops and bob-tailed flushes. I'd faint away if I ever drew a pair of Democrats."

"I'm going home, too, after this hand. I kin just see my wife now, settin' up fer me. For the love of Mike shake up them cards. I ain't had as good a pair of Johns since I got here."

"I gotta duck in ten minutes, so if you fellers want any of my dough you gotta be 'em up. I'll crack her for ten cents."

"I'm goin' to invite a different bunch next time. You all start to talk about goin' home as soon as you git your hats off. If I ever git married—Gee! Welcome little strangers! What do you think of three K. boys. I'll boost that pot two bits. You better all stay out if you ain't got anything."

2 p. m.

"Ho-hum. What'll my wife say? Deal 'em, Steve, and if you ever want to borrow my lawnmower again you gotta come across with openers."

"It is too late for me to go home now. I'm called suddenly out of town. Understand. My wife'll strangle me, but I've got to get back what I've ante in here. Oh, Judas Iscariot, are you pickin' my cards out with tweezers?"

"I'm going home after five more hands. My wife's probably packin' up to go home to mother right now. What's this, three bell-hops and a pair of stenographers? Well, what do you think of that?"

"Ain't you rabbits ever going home? I can't afford to sit here and lose every hand and pay for the lights, too. And I'll tell you, the next time you come here you'll bring your own cigars. If I don't get a hand this time I'm goin' to turn out the lights."

4 p. m.

"Ho-hum! Your deal, Steve."

"Stop throwin' them cigar butts on the floor. This ain't no saloon."

Political sentiment in Iowa is changing, and the state is now considered safe for Taft. Why shouldn't it be? Iowa has no grievance, and the people are so busy husking corn that the bellow of the Bull Moose does not disturb them.

ACCEPT LIGHTING PLAN AT EDGERTON

Work of installing 18 Five-light Ornamental Posts Begins Today—Increased Annual Cost Is $750.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Sept. 20.—At the adjourned meeting of the common council last evening a supplement to the business men's petition for new system of street lighting was presented provided for eighteen five-light 60 watt Mazda ornamental street light posts, all to be maintained by the Electric Light company for $1000.00 per year. This makes an advance in the cost of lighting the streets about $750.

About thirty taxpayers were present, most of them favoring the proposition, and the pressure was so great that when a vote on the proposition was taken the six aldermen voted to accept the offer and the city attorney was instructed to prepare a contract for the new lighting system.

Just how well the taxpayers will be satisfied to have this amount of money expended for the extra light remains to be seen. At any rate all had an opportunity to be present and object if they desired. Work of installing the new system was commenced today.

CONTENTS OF MILL DAMAGED BY FIRE

Milwaukee Milling Company Suffered $100,000 Loss by Fire Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Sept. 20.—The loss by fire on the flour milling plant of the Berger-Crittenden Co., 480 Commerce street, early today, is estimated at approximately $100,000, covered by insurance. The damage was confined to the contents.

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 20.—On the monument grounds near Malvern the customary exercises were held this afternoon in commemoration of the conflict which historians of the American Revolution have termed the "Massacre of Paoli." Today marked the one hundred and thirty-fifth anniversary of the event. On the night of September 20, 1777, the troops of General Anthony Wayne, while retreating from the battle of Brandywine, were surprised by the British general, afterwards known as "Flintless" Gray. The British general forbade his men to fire a shot, and to make sure of it, took away their flints, when came his nickname "Flintless." The night was intensely dark, and the Hessians fell upon the Americans, without a moment's warning, and bayoneted them. Only the genius of Gen. Wayne prevented the destruction of the entire body of troops.

WILL HIT THEATRE. CARDS AND DANCING

Popular amusements will be discussed by Evangelist Green in meeting tonight.

Popular amusements including theaters, dancing and card parties, will be discussed by Evangelist Green at the revival meeting at the auditorium this evening. Mr. Greene's forceful presentation of his subjects is attracting large audiences every evening. What he has to say on these questions will be keenly interesting to both church members and others not connected with any church.

At the meeting last night there was an unusually large audience. Rev. Greene took as his text, Hebrews 2:3: "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation." After laying stress on the evil of neglect in all lines of human activity showing how it brought disaster and sorrow to countless numbers, he asked how death, judgment and hell can be escaped if we are neglected. These were matters, he said, which demanded our closest attention, and our salvation depended on our willingness to follow the teaching of the Master. Mr. Clarke's singing was a feature of the meeting. He will sing several solos at the meeting tonight.

Rev. Green is anxious to call attention to the meeting for men only which will be held at the auditorium Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Following the session which resulted from his remarks last Sunday it is probable that there will be a large audience present.

LA FOLLETTE WRITES ON ALASKAN RULING

Senator Declares it Was Public Opinion That Cleared Up Situation So Satisfactorily

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—In an editorial on the "Cancelled Cunningham Claims," Senator La Follette in this week's issue of La Follette's magazine declares that the decision of Secretary Fisher in finding the Cunningham claims "improperly allowed" was not unexpected.

"For once their mighty interests have been thwarted," says the editorial. "One raid upon the public rights and the people's property has been checked. In this case the door was locked while the horse was still safely inside. And this case was made unique; it was made an exception to the rule, because of an aroused public opinion."

"It was public opinion that forced the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation. It was public opinion that strengthened the hands of the indefatigable and brilliant Braudis and helped him to drag from a sacred and reluctant administration the whole chain of damning evidence in this plot to cheat a nation. It was public opinion that cornered President Taft into accepting the adverse finding of his new secretary of the interior. And in the end this same public opinion is going to press Congress into accepting a measure that will forever safeguard the public interests in Alaska, 'the nation's storehouse.' But public opinion must stay on the job. It is not enough that these valuable lands are now in no immediate danger of exploitation by big interests that do not hesitate to stoop to fraud to gain their selfish ends. Special privilege never sleeps. Checked at one point, it slips through at another. What is needed now is a program for Alaska that will close for all time the door of ruthless exploitation, and open the way to wise development."

The progressive state central committee will hold a meeting tonight when the third party ticket may be placed in the field.

Confusion over the second choice primary system which had its initiation in Minnesota Tuesday, promises it is said to throw the entire result into a turmoil which can be straightened out only by institution of contests in numerous counties.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MAKE BELIEVE TASTE.

"I HAVE always suspected public taste to be a mongrel product, out of affection by dogmatism; and felt sure, if you could only find an honest man of no special literary bent, he would tell you he thought much of Shakespeare bombastic and most absurd, and all of him written in very obscure English and wearisome to read. And not long ago I was able to lay by my lantern in content, for I found the honest man. He was a fellow of parts, quick, humorous, a clever writer, and yet he thought, and was not ashamed to have it known of him, that Ouida was better in every way than William Shakespeare. If there were more people of his honesty, this would be about the staple of lay criticism. It is not taste that is plentiful but courage that is rare."—Stevenson.

The other day I heard the author of a very well known book, a man of culture and position, frankly declare that he did not like the classic music which his daughter played, and that he would much rather hear her play a first-class piece of popular music.

"There is harmony in those classical things," said this old gentleman frankly, "But there is no melody." Wouldn't Stevenson have enjoyed that man!

And indeed, wouldn't anyone who dislikes hypocrisy and appreciates genuineness, enjoy him!

Do you know, I think that we would all be tremendously astonished if we could suddenly see plainly into the minds of men and find out how much of the avowed admiration for the classical in literature, music and art is nothing at all but pamper talk.

And not the least of the surprise, I fancy, would be waiting for us right in our own hearts.

For we are all so accustomed to thinking that we ought to admire certain things that we often persuade everybody, ourselves included, that we do like them. While all the time, deep down in our hearts, our genuine, spontaneous admiration is for very different things.

Now tell me truly, friend, to which music does your heart really quicken the most, a sonata by Bach or one of Sousa's marches?

Or over which have you pored with the most absorbed interest, a play by Shakespeare or a novel by Richard Harding Davis or Conan Doyle?

No, don't bother to answer. It's two to one you won't acknowledge the truth to yourself, and two more chances that you would not admit it to anyone else.

Now please do not think I am depreciating the pleasure to be obtained from the really classic products by those capable of understanding them. Indeed I am not. I am only criticizing those who foolishly feign an admiration for a pleasure they do not feel.

To be sure, it is a splendid thing to be able to appreciate harmony as well as melody in all kinds of art, but it is a silly thing to pretend you do when you don't.

Listen and look at and read the good things and try to like them, but don't pretend to until you do. That's really much more admirable.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) I am much troubled about my eyebrows; they are short and homely. My lashes, also, need fixing. If vasoline is good for them, what kind? (2) What skin food do you think best? (3) What is good for tired feet? VERY ANXIOUS.

(1) The dark colored vasoline is said to be best. Put it into the eyebrows before retiring at night, and keep the brows smoothed as you wish them, with your fingers. I do not like to recommend anything for the eyelashes, as it is apt to effect the eyes, but a tiny bit of vasoline at the end of the eyelids would help the lashes. (2) Olive oil is really the best of all skin foods. Massage the face with it every night, then wipe off with a clean cloth. (3) You can rub them with witch hazel. If you will bathe them every night in tepid water strong with salt you will find your feet will not grow so tired during the day. Wear white stockings and change shoes two or three times a day.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) If a boy seems to think a great deal of a girl when he is with her, but at a dance does not ask her to dance what would you think of him? (2) I am 18 years old and went with a boy friend a year and liked him better than any other boy of my acquaintance, but my folks objected with no reason I know of. I gave him up. He has asked me repeatedly to go with him again. He is going away for a time and wants me to write to him. I am keeping company with another young man. What would you do? (3) Is it right for a young man to put his arm around a girl the first time he is with her? (4) If a young man asks a girl to write a letter to him, would it be right for her to do so?

G. L. M. (1) Maybe he is bashful in company. (2) Ask your people why they objected to him. Perhaps it was because you were both too young at the time. Do what you think is square. You can go with both. (3) No; nor any time unless they are engaged. (4) If he is a gentleman and the correspondence is merely friendly, I see no harm in replying to his letters.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) How should a girl of 17 entertain her beau of 19? (2) What object have boys in kissing a girl when they go over a bridge with them? SOMEBODY'S DARLING.

(1) Play games. Have a little music. (2) I'm sure I don't know, my dear, unless he just likes to kiss the girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Is it proper for a young lady of 17 to let a boy of 19 kiss her good night? DARK LOCKS.

Not unless you are engaged to be married to each other.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) How can I wash white gloves so they won't shrink? (2) When a gentleman calls on a girl should she take his coat and hat or let him take care of them himself? B. S.

(1) Silk does not really shrink, though the gloves appear to shrivel up. Wash them in soap suds of tepid water and a good white soap; don't rub—just squeeze them. Rinse well. Put just a hint of bluing in last rinse water. (2) If a hall rack is conspicuously near let him take care of them himself. Otherwise take them and put them where they ought to be.

WATERMELON rind pickled—Trim off the green outside and the pink inside until you come to a firm white strip. Add soda to cold water until it tastes strongly of it; let the trimmed rind stand in this twenty-four hours. Now boil in fresh water until tender enough to pierce easily. Drain and put into a rich, thick syrup flavored with ginger root. Cook until fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse."

Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you will have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at Save Your Hair! Danderine Destroy's Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Save Your Hair! Danderine Destroy's Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair at as thick as wanted and finish as with other preserves. The soda makes the strips firmer than alum or lime, and is not injurious. If the ginger flavor is not liked slices of lemon may be added to the preserve when it is almost done.

Candied ginger may be used in the place of the fresh ginger root; it is more expensive, but gives a delicate flavor; it requires no cooking; slice in tiny squares and mix in the finished preserve before it is sealed.

Yellow tomatoes—These are sometimes called fig tomatoes, and are delicious preserved and used for a winter spread. Make a rich syrup of granulated sugar and water. When it is almost thick enough to thread from the spoon drop in the small tomatoes; and place where it will barely simmer for twenty minutes, or until the skin of the fruit is tender and commences to crack open. Put the fruit into wide-mouthed jars and pour the hot syrup over it.

Red pepper jelly for cold food, and venison—Remove the seeds from red peppers and chop fine. Steam in a granite cereal cooker, or steamer until all juice is extracted. Press the peppers once in a while and turn the mass over once or twice; keep covered while cooking. Measure the juice obtained after straining and allow an equal quantity of sugar and half an inch much butter. Boil until thick. Seal in small chutney jars.

Plumaged Pheasants—Nine pounds of plums require six pounds of sugar, two quarts of vinegar and one ounce of ground cinnamon. Heat the vinegar, sugar and spice together, when the liquor is scalding put in the plums and heat them through. Put in a crock and the following morning draw off the liquor, re-heat and again pour on the fruit. Do this for three successive mornings when the fruit will be cooked sufficiently so it will keep well.

Gingered Pears—For these you will need a box of preserved or crystallized ginger, sold in two sizes, 15 and 25 cents; the juice and rind of five lemons, one peck of cooking pears, two oranges, one quart of hot water.

Cut the oranges and lemons into shreds, saving their grated rind, peel the pears and cut them cross ways, into slices, remove seeds. Dissolve the sugar in the hot water, heat and add the oranges, then the lemons and the pears. Simmer gently an hour; add the ginger cut in thin slices and simmer another hour. Put in pint fruit jars, seal and keep in a dry, cool place.

New Talking-Machine Records. Talking machine records made by photography will be the next development in the reproduction of sound. Invented by a Russian named Lifschitz, a new machine has been made which, it is claimed, reproduces music and sounds of any kind with perfect clearness, without any rasping or scraping defects. The records are made entirely by photography.

EMERGENCY DISHES. Usually dishes that are needed in a hurry are not those of little cost, though they need not be extravagant. Under the sudden pressure of unexpected company, and the demands on one's hospitality, the subject of expense is for the moment forgotten.

A very excellent idea is to have a few emergency recipes posted in a convenient place near the hospitality shelf of good things, reserved for just such occasions.

As simple dishes are best liked by the best people, and more thought is given to the dainty equipment of the table, than to lavish display, any one with hospitable instincts, good taste and small means, can entertain most satisfactorily.

The bouillon cubes that may be dropped into hot water at a moment's notice, the canned soups, so appetizing, or cream (of any vegetable) soup may be very quickly prepared and is always welcome.

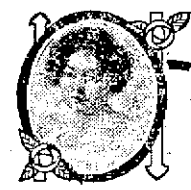

The paper bag cookery, which is getting more and more popular with those who have gotten over their prejudices enough to give it a fair trial, is a boon to an emergency hostess, for anyone, even the rankest skeptic, will fall to and devour the delicious morsels which steam forth from the paper bag.

The plebeian liver and bacon becomes a dish which the French chef would name a "creation," when cooked in a paper bag.

Lay strips of delicate thinly sliced bacon into a paper bag, parboil slices of calf's liver, drain and dredge with seasoned flour, plenty of salt, pepper and a grating of onion. Put into a hot oven and cook fifteen to twenty minutes. Serve the bag on a hot platter and open the top of the bag at the table, then listen for the admiring sighs of your guests.

A dish which is a little more work to prepare, but superlatively good, is liver parboiled, drained, dredged with flour, salt and pepper, put through the meat chopper with a little bacon, and then mix together with a seasoning of grated onion. Make into patties and roast in a buttered bag for ten minutes.

Securing Artistic Effects in Furnishings

WE WILL soon be putting our houses in order for the winter, and many of us are wishing we could achieve some new effects, or make our homes prettier than they were last season. But as we are going to use exactly the same furnishings, we feel rather hopeless as to securing any new or better results.

But we may be able to work quite a transformation simply by a change in arrangement. An interior decorator of repute has been talking lately upon the value of lines. He says no room will look its best, if the lines of the furnishings all go the same way. This does not mean they should go "every which way," as old-time housekeepers used to say. But monotony should be broken.

A room in which every piece of furniture is arranged primly around the four walls will look better if a sofa is placed diagonally across a corner, or a table set at right angles to the other pieces of furniture.

If the room is large enough, a davenport backed up against a table, in the centre or at one end of the room, will lend decided charm. Most of us have an idea that a davenport or couch must be set against the wall. But this is not inherently necessary. They don't grow that way. If the room is large enough to permit a freer arrangement, try it. If you will study the pictures of rooms in the homes of the wealthy, you will see big, easy couches and desks and tables in the centre of the room or toward the side, but at some distance from the wall. And the rooms look a hundred per cent. better than if there were no such breaks.

Then every room ought to have a centre of some sort. If there is a fireplace, this naturally becomes the central point. Easy chairs are grouped about it, a table with a reading lamp, possibly a davenport.

But if there is no fireplace, and in most houses there is none, some point or some object should be made the centre. It may be a desk, a table, the piano, the sofa. But easy chairs should be placed near and a reading light handy. Such a centre gives a room a homelike, sociable air.

Then, too, the housekeeper who wishes to give her home a different air this fall may do so by regrouping some of the furnishings. Perhaps she can get a more harmonious color scheme by changing about some of the little fixings, such as sofa-cushions, stand covers, small rugs, portieres, vases and bric-a-brac. Or she may secure a much better effect by regrouping some of her pictures. And it is just possible she may make her rooms far more harmonious and artistic by omitting altogether some of the furnishings. There may be some that jar, that do not fit into the furnishing scheme of any room. These may be the very things that have caused the dissatisfaction she has felt without exactly knowing what was the matter. Or the rooms may be over-crowded, and this may be the cause of the home's not looking as artistic and restful as she wishes.

Why not experiment along these lines when putting the house in order this fall? You may be able thereby to effect some changes that will be a delight to you all winter.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

by Edna K. Woolley

I ordered some to come this week, but they got here last week instead. My mother-in-law, who's staying with me while my wife's away, said they would spoil if they weren't put up right away. So yesterday I said I'd do it and I did.

"None—never canned anything before, except an office boy. But these peaches will be good believe me." I did it scientifically and didn't burn myself in more than five or six places and only cracked four jars. Of course mother-in-law helped some, but I did all the work.

"Saw! Won't I have something to show my wife when she gets home? She never canned anything in her life, you know, and when she sees I'm one ahead of her she'll be some surprised, I tell you."

Which reminds us that quite a few husbands have become experts in the art of helping wife put up fruit and vegetables for the family's winter consumption. They do it up right, too, though when a man cans fruit he invariably makes it so sweet that nobody likes it real well but himself. Also, he is apt to stir it into mush, putting too much brawn and muscle into it. "Well," he grinned, "you can't guess what I did yesterday."

"According to your looks," we opined, "you busted the Sabbath somewhere and somehow."

"Yap," he replied acquiescent. "I did. And as you never could guess in fourteen Chinese moons what it was, I'll elucidate. I canned peaches!" We became properly excited.

"Peaches," we cried. "Peaches," he chorused. "You see, I tell you."

Usually dishes that are needed in a hurry are not those of little cost, though they need not be extravagant. Under the sudden pressure of unexpected company, and the demands on one's hospitality, the subject of expense is for the moment forgotten.

Any corn just loves to be cut and gouged, but it's mighty rough on you. Masters and slaves usually take away some of the toe with them, and leave the corn to flourish. By the way, did you ever notice that the man who helps his wife in the kitchen work is seldom the man who kicks about the bills when they come in? He is too well acquainted with market prices and the labor of preparing food for the family.

"Father used to be a regular bear about the bills when mother was living," said the oldest of a family of girls. "But now he has to do most of the marketing himself, because we girls all have positions downtown and he has more time to market than we have. He wears a considerably chastened countenance since he's found out for himself what things cost and how much is needed."

"First he bought too little, and of course we made an awful howl. Then he bought too much and we laughed at him. Now he's just about getting into a happy medium, though I tell him he'll never be as good a calculator as mother was. She never had too much or too little of anything, and always planned so nothing was wasted. Even with one less in the family our meat and grocery bills are higher now."

Elephant's Wonderful Trunk. The trunk of the elephant may justly be considered as one of the miracles of nature, being at once the organ of respiration, as well as the instrument by which the animal supplies itself with food. Nearly eight feet in length, endowed with exquisite sensibility, and stout in proportion to the massive size of the animal, this organ will uproot trees or gather grass, raise a piece of artillery or take up a rut, kill a man or brush off a fly.

YOU'LL find it worth while, when you do any painting or have it done for you, to ask your painter to tell you how many gallons you will need for the job.

Then order Devoe Lead-and-Zinc Paint; as many gallons as he says. Arrange with the dealer to take back what isn't used.

You'll take back from a quarter to a half the quantity you order, as a rule; a direct saving of money to you. It has been proved many times. Order Devoe.

COLD WAVE COMING BEGINNING SUNDAY

Foster Predicts Continued Cold Spell With Frosts October 1—Warmer Next Month.

(Copyright, 1912, W. D. Foster.) Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Sept. 26 to 30, warm wave 25 to 29, cool wave 28 to Oct. 2. Unusually cool weather is expected to be a part of this disturbance and killing frosts may reach northern edges of the cotton belt. A severe cool wave is expected to drift in from the northwest not far from Sept. 22 and each cool wave following will bring much cooler weather till near Oct. 3, causing temperatures to average usually low from near Sept. 22 to near Oct. 5.

Our forecast of unusually severe storms in many places all around the earth, Aug. 26 to 31, was a great success for these forecasts but the storm forces were so great that they threw our temperature lines off, causing warm weather first week of Sept. where we had predicted cool weather. Our forecasts of these great storms, that caused the loss of 50,000 human lives, were based on the relative positions of the great planet Jupiter and Saturn.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Oct. 3, cross Pacific slope by close of 4, great central valleys 5 to 7, eastern sections 8. Warm wave will reach Pacific slope about Oct. 3, great central valleys 5, eastern sections 7. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 6, great central valleys 8, eastern sections 10.

This disturbance will bring a small rise in temperature but at no time will high temperatures prevail. Not much rain is expected with this disturbance. Weather will be generally quiet but will become more disturbed about Oct. 8 as this disturbance enters the eastern states and one preceding enters the Pacific slope.

October will be an unusually cold month and the cold weather will continue till about Nov. 20 after which date the average temperatures will go very high, making Dec. average as much above normal temperatures as October will average below. From Dec. 20 to Jan. 2 the temperatures will be lower than usual.

A notable event in astronomy, astronomical meteorology and astrophysics will occur during the week of which Oct. 11 will be central. During that week a great group of sunspots are expected to form on the extreme eastern side of the sun—on the left hand side as we look at the sun at noon.

About that time great disturbances are expected on many parts of the earth, including a hurricane in the Caribbean Sea, a severe cold wave in our northwest and other severe weather features on this continent. Frosts will go very far south. We are not yet able to give details of these great disturbances and about all we can safely say is to be on the lookout for whatever may come.

The past crop season was unusual. The early rains thoroughly wet the soil in most places and that moisture remained in the soil throughout the season. In one third of the country east of Rockies the rainfall was deficient 35 per cent, but throughout the drouth the soil remained damp and grain kept good color. It was a clear case of deficiency of evaporation that saved the crops. Evaporation is unusually small in Canada and large in the states. We have not yet learned how to forecast evaporation of moisture from the soil.

MILTON COLLEGE SOCIAL GIVEN TUESDAY EVENING.

Address of Welcome and Musical Numbers on Program—Other Milton News.

Milton, Sept. 20.—A student is never fully initiated to our college life until after the college social has taken place. The first of the year occurred on Tuesday evening, in the college auditorium. Many interesting townspeople took this opportunity to meet new friends and old, and the floor was well filled.

Miss Soverhill's violin selections were especially enjoyed, as was Miss Grandall's vocal solo. The address of welcome from the Christian Association was given by Mr. Fred Babcock, and the response by Miss Bonnell. A reading by Mr. Stringer and a piano solo by President Daland completed the program. The chairs were then removed and a large number took part in the marches. The committee had provided several ingenious ways of securing partners and everyone was well provided for.

The purpose of these socials is to further good fellowship among the students. We want all new students to realize how much they mean to the life and progress of the institution. The college needs them and expects much from them and it intends to give them the best that it has.

PACK THIS SEASON MAY BREAK RECORD

Pea Pack at Hohenadel Canning Factory Largest Ever Put Up Here—Corn Pack May Set New Mark.

One million, three hundred and twenty thousand cans of peas were packed this season at the P. Hohenadel, Jr. canning factory in this city, the largest pack by far that it has ever made, and the corn pack which is now being put up, and the sauer kraut pack, which will follow it, also promise to be record-breakers. The pea pack was finished about August 1st and lasted six weeks, a season of exceptional length. It opened about two weeks later than usual. The yield was much heavier than last year and the acreage planted greater, being approximately 650 acres.

The corn pack was begun about September 1 and will probably last through the month. The quality of the corn delivered to the factory is very much better than last year because of the cool weather and abundance of moisture. The heat and drouth last year made the corn shrivel and dry up. The acreage planted, about 1,500, is practically the same as last year, and the Evergreen variety is used exclusively. The average daily output is 75,000 cans, and about two cars are shipped out every day. From 100 to 120 loads of corn are delivered to the factory every day, coming in almost faster than it can be handled.

The packing of sauer kraut will begin as soon as the corn pack is completed and the prospects are for a big crop that will keep the factory running until Thanksgiving day or later. The cabbages are contracted for by the ton in much the same way as sugar beets are purchased by the sugar manufacturers.

Nearly two hundred men and women are given employment during the corn pack, but not so many in the pea packing season. Between 75 and 100 huskers are employed, most of them women, who are paid a fixed price per basket. Six husking machines are used, each of which is capable of doing the work of about ten huskers. They were used for the first time last year, and were not altogether satisfactory, but a number of important improvements have been made in them since. It is not probable that they will displace hand-husking in the factory for some time.

The factory utilizes about three million tin cans annually. All its product is sold to wholesale houses.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

TEA.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

Tea is a placid, unruffled beverage which is served to people who wish to become thoroughly heated through before retiring. Four cups of vigorous green tea, swallowed in a molten state, will bring a man's temperature up to 104 degrees in the shade and allow him to crawl in between cold sheets without shivering a relay of chills.

Tea is made in Japan by barefooted hired men who beat it into a state of insensibility with their feet, after which it is shipped to this country and served to the accompaniment of a high handshake. Tea-growers are used as horrible examples of foreign pauper labor and become very effective in bolstering up a high protective tariff, as they seldom earn over 15 cents a day gross.

Owing to the scarcity of men and women in this country who go about barefooted, the tea industry has never secured much of a hold here.

Tea is a favorite drink of the bird of prey known as the social butterfly and has taken the place of frappe as an incentive to small talk. Some of the snuggest talk we ever heard in our life came from a garrulous guest who was flooded with native plouquence and Oolong tea.

The best way to prepare tea for the table is to catch it when it is ripe, mix a few strands with boiling water and pour without straining. This will cause the tea to rise to the surface so that people can tell it from plain hot water at the first glance. While the guests are picking out the tea and depositing it upon their butter plates they will be too busy to empty the olive dish, thus effecting quite a saving.

The English people drink tea nine times a day and then perspire in proud Anglo-Saxon accents. If it were not for the Japanese coolie and the American mutton chop, the English nation would have to live on stewed rice and memories of Lord Nelson at Trafalgar.

Women drink more tea than men and prefer black tea or any other variety, as it will keep them awake longer and allow them to finish something they started to say the day before. Men seldom drink tea to excess, and never without crossing their fingers.

Should Serve as Warnings.

"The follies, vices, and consequent miseries of multitudes displayed in a newspaper, are so many admonitions, and warnings, so many beacons, continually burning, to turn others from the rocks on which they have been shipwrecked."—Bishop Horne.

Daily Thought.

Nothing in the world is so hard to counter as suspicions that cannot be the nature of things be disproved of brought to the test of fact, that relate less to the present than to some indefinite future, and that tend through infinite repetition and by their very elusiveness to acquire a certain credibility.—Sydney Brooks.

The first month's tests have been given this week. Reports are sent out once each quarter.

Miss Alice Challen entered school on Thursday. Miss Cullen has been spending the summer in South Dakota.

Miss Marie Lay began work in the training school on Monday of this week as a member of the Junior class. There is now a good sized Junior class and twenty in the Senior class.

Miss Hone Sands, one of last year's graduates, was a caller at the training school recently. Miss Sands teaches near Leyden and she is enthusiastic over her work. She has a goodly number of boys and girls and she likes the work very much.

Superintendent Buell called at our school recently while on his round of supervision.

We are receiving letters from the young women who graduated last June and who are now out teaching. Every one of the girls testifies as to the value of her training. Special preparation is as useful for teachers as for a physician or lawyer.

One of our young women comes to our school from Chippewa county, and is a non-resident, tuition student. Five counties bounding Chippewa county each have a training school, viz. Dunn, Eau Claire, Taylor, Pepin and Barron.

This week closes our first month of school and we are now thoroughly organized in all our various activities. Everybody is busy doing useful work, so we are all happy. We will welcome visitors who care to come at any time.

A number of good magazines have been subscribed for and these are now found on the reading table. The students are trained in the use of these aids to the teacher's work.

Mrs. T. L. Barnum of Orfordville, visited her daughter, Esther Barnum, at the school on Wednesday, and was present at the rhetorical exercises held under the auspices of the Literary Society in the afternoon.

The training school students went out to the Institute for the Blind Thursday afternoon. Several of the young women had never seen this state institution although most of them were born and brought up in Rock county.

"GRAUSTARK" GIVEN AT MYERS THEATRE

Play Based on McCutcheon Book Presented by Company Headed by Louissita Valentine.

"Graustark," dramatized from the book of the same name by George Barr McCutcheon, which has appeared before in this city, was given before good-sized audiences at matinee and evening performances at the Myers theatre yesterday by a company headed by Miss Louissita Valentine. Miss Valentine appeared in the role of the heroine, the Princess Yelive of Graustark, a part which calls for strong dramatic ability to portray the imperious yet womanly nature of the sovereign of the tiny kingdom. The part of Cranfall Lowry, Yelive's American lover, was taken by Fred Cantway. Of the other characters, the strongest was that of Baron Danggloss, prime minister, military official and secret service officer for the kingdom, in which Neil Barrett appeared. The play is staged in five acts, each scene being laid in Edelweiss, the capital of Graustark. Scenic effects and costumes for the play were good.

DINNER STORIES

Colonel Faulkner of Texas was walking along the road one spring morning when he met an old dorky proceeding slowly on his way to the village, whither he was bound to secure his stock of tobacco for the coming week. "Well! Uncle Primus! how are you?" asked the colonel. "Yas suh, yas suh, thank you suh, Marse Faulkner, yes suh. Ah is feelin' fine dis spring. Ah suttinly is feelin' fine. Ah doan remember as Ah evah felt no bettah in mah life, but sumway ruther Ah seem to be gittin' to de tahn of life w'en Ah's lookin' fer de low spots in de fence."

Two Germans were walking one cold day, on the banks of a large pond, when one of them fell in. He could not swim and screamed for aid. The other, who was an officer, did not feel inclined to take so cold a plunge, and calmly watched the struggles of the sinking man. All at once the man in the water began to sing a verse of "Marseilles," and the officer jumped in forthwith, for his strict orders were to arrest any person whom he heard sing that famous song. The unfortunate citizen was imprisoned for eight months, but that was better than drowning.

An Irishman just landed got work on the New York Central as flagman at Tarrytown. His first day on the job he waved the red danger signal before the Empire State Express. The brakes screeched down, the train stopped and the crew ran up. "What's the matter? Why did you stop this train?" the conductor demanded. "Well—" began the flagman. "Don't you know it's state prison offence to stop a train without cause?" the conductor explained. "Why, we're twenty minutes late now. 'That's just it,' was the answer. 'Where have yez been the last twenty minutes?'"

At a little dinner the other night the assertion was made that the negro race had longer memories than white folk. Ex-Governor Bunn of Pennsylvania, who was present, agreed with the remark, and to prove it told the following: "Some years ago, when South, I met an old colored man who claimed to have known George Washington. I asked him whether he was in the boat when George Washington crossed the Delaware, and he instantly replied: 'Lor, massa, I steered dat boat.' 'Well,' said I, 'do you remember when George took the back at the cherry tree?' He looked worried for a minute and then, with a beautiful smile, said: 'Why, suah, massa; I dun drove dat back myself.'"

HARVEST WEATHER IS BADLY NEEDED

Tobacco Growers With Late Crops are Especially Anxious for Sunshine Days.

Rain and more of it and then continued cloudiness which has been the program for the past week, causes more than one farmer an attack of the blues. Tobacco growers who have late crops are especially anxious concerning the weather conditions. There has been little opportunity this week to get much of the crop into the sheds as wilting weather has been almost entirely lacking. The rain and damp will not aid in bringing the backward crop to maturity and the outlook is not promising.

Other crops will feel the effects of the wet weather. In the northern section of the state the harvest of the potato crop will be greatly hindered and continued rains will increase the danger of rotting. Many of the farmers are becoming anxious concerning corn harvest although there is plenty of time to begin cutting as yet. It is thought that the corn crop in this section is beyond danger from frost, but tobacco men with crops in the field fear that clearing weather will bring frosts which may damage their crops. Weather forecasts are

MAY BE FIREWORKS AT N. Y. DEM MEET

Charles Murphy.
When New York Democrats meet in state convention at Syracuse on October 1, some real fireworks will probably be in order. Charles Murphy, boss of Tammany Hall, who controls 247 out of 450 delegates, seems determined to bring about the re-nomination of Governor Dix, who is hand in glove with Tammany. Dix was opposed to the nomination of Woodrow Wilson and now the Democratic nominee for the presidency makes no secret that he is opposed to the nomination of Dix. A large number of Wilson's followers in the Empire state have threatened to vote for Strauss, the Progressive candidate, if Dix is nominated.

Something unpleasant will come to you, take especial care of anything that you value and avoid risks of all kinds.

Advice and Example.

He that gives good advice builds with one hand; he that gives good counsel and good example builds with both hands, but he that gives good admonition and bad example builds with one hand and destroys his work with the other.—Crotan.

A Bad Spill.

"Here's a young woman that was left half a million dollars merely for spilling a little sunshine into an old man's life." Her experience is more fortunate than mine. I once spilled a cup of coffee into an old man's lap and he cut me out of his will altogether."

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher
Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams
BY WALT MASON

"This surely is a one horse town," the shiftless man asserts, then takes his speedy grip sack down, and pucks his socks and shirts and to some other village goes to seek the shining plunk; there he accumulates new woe; and says the burg is punk. In every town, however sick, you'll hear the failures say: "This wretched hamlet makes us sick; we'll chase ourselves away. The poor man has no chances here, he finds no open door; the whole corrupted atmosphere makes head and bosom sore."

From town to town the failures drift and find each one the worst until at last the peelers lift them to the jug feet first. All towns are good if you will work and try to reach the top; all towns are fierce if you're a shirk, whose mission is to yawp. Select a man whose heart is bold, whose courage never slumped, and he will gather fame and gold, no matter where he's dumped. Though planted in the virgin woods, or on an island bare, you'll see him coming with the goods, and both feet in the air. And when you hear a pilgrim waile, and blame things on his town, you may be sure that he would fail where'er he settled down.

A FAREWELL PERFORMANCE

Mossey J. Oker—Better put me on for a week. It will tickle an audience almost to death to hear my last monologue.

THEN HE BORROWED TEN

Mr. Blower—Yes, sir, the anarchists talk of killing off all the great men in the world.

Mr. I. M. P. Cunius—Gracious! Don't you feel a bit worried, old chap?

Blessed Sympathy.

Sympathy with animals blesses and humanizes men and women. To get into real relations with an animal is a liberal education. It is something to be really interested even in a plant and to observe the working of life in any sphere not our own. How much more when that life is directing a personality which consciously looks up to us and will love us if we will let it.—Christian Register.

Unkind.

"Bliggins thinks he is keeping his light under a bushel." "Perhaps he is wise," replied Miss Cayenne; "his light is probably so small that it would go out if he let a draft get to it."

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

MONODIET THEORY GROWING.

The old doctrine, still held by many physicians, that much variety in diet is beneficial, even for the sick, is gradually giving way to the demonstrated truth that the balanced ration, supplied with the least incompatibility, is the ideal, the great benefit of the absolute monodiet in the case of the sick being fully established by the experience of the milk, grape, flesh-meat and other cures. Dr. E. E. Keeler, editor of Good Health Clinic, says that it is best always to "eat one or two or at most three articles of food at a meal." Recently "Life and Health" published an article showing the injurious effects of mixing foods indiscriminately. The vast importance of the monodiet for the pathological side is not yet fully recognized, but Dr. Henry A. Benson, a few months ago showed in an article in Physiological Therapeutics that the fundamental cause of the most serious auto-intoxication is the eating of a great variety of foods, and that radical cure, immunity, can be secured only by a simple diet. Recent experiments showing that mice are more resistant to certain poisons when fed on one article of food than when eating several (Journal of American Medical Association) have tended to confirm the important claims for the influence of the monodiet as a safeguard against infection as well as against chronic disease.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.
The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.
There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.
Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.
But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.
The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Peculiar Case of Poisoning.

Metal poisoning from handling copper coins was the curious cause for death recently assigned at West Ham, England. The deceased, age twenty-seven, had been employed to collect coins from penny-in-the-slot gas meters, and his physician testified that the coins were often green with verdigris, which remained on the collector's hands and was absorbed through his habit of curling his mustache with his finger.

Once in the street her demeanor again changed. Her step became sharp and quick, her expression keenly absorbed and concentrated. A clock showed her that it was nearly half-past ten, and she walked, with a speed that was as rapid a mode of progression as it could be without attracting attention, to the great bank on which the check was drawn. On the way down on the car she had thought out all her movements, just what she would do, and where she would go. Her mind was as clear, her movements as systematic as though she were moved by mechanism.

She ran up the steps to the bank and presented the check at the paying teller's window.

"In one-thousand dollar bills, if you please," she said, trying not to speak breathlessly, "all but five hundred, and you can give me that in one-hundred's."

The man knew her, made some vaguely polite remark, and took the slip of paper back into unseen regions. Benny stood waiting, throbbing from head to foot with excitement. She was not afraid of the teller's refusal to cash the check. Her sole fear was that Cannon, as soon as she was gone, might have regretted his action and telephoned from his office to stop the payment on it. She knew that once the money was hers he would not make any attempt to get it back. His own reputation and that of his daughter were too inextricably bound up with the transaction for him to care to apprehend or punish Benny for her deception.

Her heart gave a wild leap as she saw the teller returning, and then pause behind the netting of his golden cage while he counted out the bills. She tried to speak lightly to him as he laid them one by one on the glass slab. She was hardly conscious of what she said; all she realized was that the crisp roll of paper in her fingers was her possession, if not of great fortune, at least of something to stand between her and the world.

When she left the bank she walked forward slowly, the excitement which had carried her on to this point having suddenly left her feeling weak and tired. She entered the railway office and bought her ticket for New York for that evening's train. Then once more emerging into the sunshine she directed her steps to the car which would take her to her sisters. She had decided to spend her last day in San Francisco with them. As the car whisked her up the hills she carefully pondered on how much she would tell them, where truth was advisable and where fiction would serve a better purpose.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Storm Center Moves.
As soon as Benny had left his office Bill Cannon wrote a note to Mrs. Ryan, telling her of the interview he had just had with her daughter-in-law. He did not mention the check, simply stating Benny's decision to accept their proposal and leave her husband. The matter was of too intimate a nature to trust to the telephone and he sent the note by one of his own clerks, who had instructions to wait for an answer, as the old man did not know what Mrs. Ryan might already have heard from Dominick.

It threw its recipient into a state of agitated, quivering excitement. Mrs. Ryan had heard nothing from her son, and her hopes of the separation had sunk to the lowest ebb. Not so prudent as Cannon, she called up Dominick at the bank, asking him if it were true that his wife had left him, and beseeching him simply to tell her "yes" or "no." The young man, hampered by the publicity of his surroundings and his promise to Benny, answered her with the utmost brevity, telling her that there had been a change in his domestic life, but that he could not enter into details now. He begged her to ask him no further questions as he would be at home at three o'clock that afternoon, when he would explain the whole matter to her.

She wrote this to the Bonanza King and sent it by his waiting messenger. The old man felt relieved when he read the letter. He was confident now that Benny had not deceived him. She had told the truth, and was leaving the town and her husband, for what reason he could not yet be sure, but there seemed no doubt that she was going. They would ignore the subject before Rose, and in the course of time, Dominick would break down the unflinching resistance she had threatened to make to his suit. The old man felt buoyant and exhilarated. It looked as if things were at last going their way.

He sent a message to Mrs. Ryan, asking her to let him know as soon as possible what Dominick said, and waited in his office in a state of tension very foreign to his usual iron stolidity. It was four o'clock before word came from her in the form of a telephone message, demanding his presence at her house at the earliest possible moment. He responded to it at once, and in the sitting-room of the Ryan mansion heard from Dominick's own lips the story of his false and tragic marriage.

The old man listened, unwinking, speechless, immovable. It was the one thing he had never thought of, a solution of the situation that was as completely unexpected to him as death would have been. He said nothing to Dominick about the money he had given Benny, did not mention having seen her. A sharp observer might have noticed that he looked a little blank, that the first shock of surprise over, there was a slight expression of wandering attention in his eye, a suggestion of mental faculties inwardly focusing on an unseen point, about his manner.

He walked home, deeply thinking, abashed a little by the ease with which fate unties the knots that man's clumsy fingers work over in vain. And it was untied. They were free—the boy and girl he loved—to realize his and their own dreams. It would need no years of wooing to melt Rose from stony resistance. Nobody had been sacrificed.

He felt a sense of gratitude toward Benny. Down in his heart he was conscious of a stirring of something that was kindly, almost affectionate, toward her. It did not require a great stretch of imagination to see himself and her as two knowing, water-battered rogues who had combined to let youth and innocence have their happiness. He could almost feel the partnership with her she had spoken of, a sort of bond of Masonic understanding, a kindred attitude in matters of ethics. They had a mutually low estimate of human nature, a bold, cool, unscrupulousness, a daring courage that never faltered. In fact, he was sorry he had not given Benny the whole fifty thousand dollars.

"She could have got it out of me," he said to himself, pondering pensively. "If she'd stuck out for it I'd have given it to her. And she might just as well have had it."

That evening for the first time in nearly three years Dominick Ryan dined with his mother in the great dining-room of the Ryan mansion. Cornelia was out with Jack Duffy, so Mrs. Ryan had her boy all to herself and she beamed and glowed and gloated on him as he sat opposite her, the reddened light of the candles falling on his beloved, familiar face.

After dinner they went into the sitting-room, the sanctum with the ebony cherry furniture where the family always retired when important matters were at foot. Here, side by side, they sat before the fireplace with the portrait of the late Cornelius Ryan looking benignly down on them. They did not talk much. The subject of the young man's marriage had been thoroughly gone over in the afternoon. Later on, his mother would extract from him further particulars, till she would be as conversant with that miserable chapter of his life as if she had lived it herself.

Tonight they were both in the quiescent state that follows turmoil and strife. They sat close together, starting into space, now and then dropping one of the short disconnected sentences that indicate a fused, understanding intimacy. The young man's body was limp in his chair, his mind lulled in the restorative lethargy, the suspension of activities, that follows a struggle. His thoughts shrank shudderingly from the past, and did not seek to penetrate the future. He rested in a torpor of relief through which a dreamy sense of happiness came dimly, as if in the faintest, most delicate whispers.

His mother's musings were definite and practical. She could now make that settlement, share and share alike, on both her children that she had long desired—Cornelia's would be a dowry on her wedding day and Dominick's—well, Dominick had had hard times enough. She would go down to-morrow morning and see her lawyer about it.

At the same hour, in the house of the other rich man, the Bonanza King, having driven the servants from the room with violent words that did not indicate bad humor so much as high spirits, told his daughter the story. He told it shortly, hardly more than the main facts, and when it was concluded, forbore to make comments or, in fact, to look at her. It was a great deliverance, but he was not quite sure that his darling would experience the frank, unadulterated joy that had possessed both himself and Mrs. Ryan without restraining qualms. He did not know what to say to Rose. There were mysterious complexities in her character that made him decide to confine his statement to a recital of facts, eliminating those candid expressions of feeling which he could permit himself when talking to Mrs. Ryan or Benny.

As soon as he had told it all he rose from his chair as if ending the interview. His daughter rose, too, pale and silent, and he put his arm round her shoulders and pressed her against his chest in a good-night hug. She kissed him and went up stairs to her own room, and he returned to his arm-chair at the end of the dining-table. Here, as was his wont, he sat smoking and pondering, turning over in his head the various aspects of the curious story and its unexpected outcome. Once, as the memory of Benny weeping into his handkerchief recurred to him, he stirred uneasily and muttered to himself:

"Why didn't the damned fool stick out for the whole fifty thousand? I'd have given it to her as soon as not."

Meantime the storm center, the focus round which the hopes and angers and fears of this little group had circled, was speeding eastward in the darkness of the early night. Benny sat in the corner of her section with her luggage piled high on the seat before her, a pillow behind her head. In the brightly clear light, intensified by reflections from glazed woodwork and the surfaces of mirrors, she looked less haggard, calmer and steadier, than she had looked for many weeks. Relief was at her heart. Now that she had turned her back on it she realized how she had hated it all—the flat, the isolation, the unsuccessful struggle, Dominick and his superior ways.

The excitement of change, the desire for the new, the unfamiliar, the untried, which had taken her car after once before, sang in her blood and whispered its siren song in her ear. She had missed a fortune, but still she had something. She was not plunging penniless into the great outside world, and she pressed her hand against her chest where the thirty-five thousand dollars was sewed into the lining of her bodice. Thirty-five thousand dollars! It was a good deal if it wasn't three hundred thousand.

As the train thundered on through the darkness she saw before her the lights of great cities, and heard the call of liberty, the call of the nomad and the social vagabond, the call of the noisy thoroughfare, of the bright places, of the tumult and the crowd. The roving passion of the wanderer, to whom the spell of home is faint as a whisper in the night, passed into her veins like the invigorating heat of wine. She exulted in the sense of her freedom, in the magic of adventure, in the wild independence of the unknown.

THE END.

(2) What would you say the twelve told Jesus concerning "what they had done and what they had taught?"

(3) Verse 31—What is the relative importance of necessary work and necessary rest?

(4) What evidence is there that, notwithstanding his busy life, Jesus taught by precept and example the need of taking proper rest?

(5) Verse 32—Is it either wise or necessary for a faithful minister of the gospel to tell the people when he takes a rest?

(6) Verse 33—If Jesus intended to go away "privately" how do you account for it that his plans were upset?

(7) Jesus intended to take a rest with his disciples, but instead was plunged into more intense work. Now, which would you say was God's preference, that Jesus' intention should be "carried out" or that which actually happened?

(8) To a man of God which is divine guidance, what he expects to do or what he actually does?

(9) Verse 34—If preachers and other Christian teachers succeed in making Christ actually known to the masses will the people flock to Christ, as in those days? Why?

(10) What was the condition of the people which so moved the heart of Jesus, and what conditions today are there which when known stir similar compassion in all Christian hearts?

(11) Which are the people in more need of today, preaching or teaching?

(12) Verses 35-36—Were the disciples right or wrong, and why, in calling the attention of Jesus to the needs of the multitude?

(13) If our heavenly Father knows our temporal needs what is the benefit of calling his attention to them?

(15) Whom does God command to feed the millions of the earth who are spiritually hungry, and when and how does he expect it to be done?

(16) When God commands us to do that which looks to us to be impossible is it wisdom or folly for us to attempt it, and why?

(17) Verses 38-40—What is the proof that we have all the necessary qualities and opportunities to accomplish the work in life to which we are appointed by God? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(18) When a man is not systematic and works without method is that any evidence that he is not true to the laws of God? Why?

She Had Consumption, Was Dying; Now Well

Eckman's Alternative is being used with success in the treatment of tuberculosis in all parts of the country. Persons who have taken it, improved, gained weight, exhausted night sweats stopped, fever diminished, and many recovered. If you are interested to know more about it, we will put you in touch with some who are now well. You can investigate and judge for yourself. Read of Mrs. Gove's recovery.

"Gentlemen: Thinking that perhaps a short history of the remarkable recovery of my mother-in-law (Mrs. Anna Gove) might benefit some other sufferers, I give the following testimonial: About September 10, 1908, she was taken sick with Catarrhal Pneumonia, and continually grew worse, requiring a trained nurse. Night sweats were so bad that it was necessary to change her clothing once or twice every night; her cough increased, and got so bad that everybody expected that she would not live much longer. In January, when Rev. Wm. Berg, of St. Michael's Church, at Janesville, Ind., prepared for her death, he recommended that I get Eckman's Alternative, and see if it would not give her some relief. I then requested the attending physician to give his diagnosis and he informed me that she had Consumption and was beyond all medical aid. When I asked if he thought that it was useless to try the Alternative, he replied that 'No physician could help her any and I could suit myself about it.' So I immediately had Rev. Wm. Berg to send for a bottle. Practically without hope for recovery, I insisted that she try the Alternative, which she did. I am glad to say that she soon began to improve. Now, she weighs as hard as ever, weighs twenty pounds heavier than she ever did before she took sick, and is in good health. She frankly says she owes her life and health to Eckman's Alternative."

THE extremely light action of the Monarch Typewriter endears it to all operators who use it.

for users of this machine. The mechanical reason for the Monarch light touch is found in the action of the Monarch type bar, an exclusive and patented feature which gives this remarkably light touch.

We would remind the business man that Monarch light touch means more work and better work, because less physical strength is expended by the operator. Therefore, cost per folio is reduced, making the Monarch a business economy.

THE STORY OF AMAROFF THE POLE

"You may think yourself an artist," wrote my uncle, "but I call you a silly young fool."

I remembered the sentence and the reading of it well enough, though time has not stood idle since that September evening of the year 1892. From the point of view of Bradford, my uncle might be right; but what did he know, I argued, of the higher ideal which I had chosen preferring the development of my artistic sense to the mere accumulation of money that I could not spend? Where was his joy of life—he who spent his days in the whirl of wheels and the fog of many chimneys? How could I compare with mine in the ancient peace of the eighteenth century house that lay under the towers that crowned the ancient abbey at Westminster? I looked around me at the delicate tapestries that I had brought from Florence to my London rooms; at the glowing Fragonards—souvenirs of my year of artistic study in Paris; at the Dresden groups radiant of old Saxony. Was I the fool or my uncle George? There seemed to me no doubt about it. It was plainly Uncle George.

Yet the letter had unsettled me. I opened the swing doors that led to my studio, switched on the light, and stepped from easel to easel, examining my half-finished work with a growing dissatisfaction. Were they indeed merely the daubs of a wealthy amateur? I loitered back to my sitting-room in a sulky depression, and had picked up an art paper, when there came a tapping at the door, and the grizzled head of old Jacob Hendry came peering in. A perfect servant was old Hendry, once sergeant of infantry, and now a combination of cook, valet, and housemaid, who kept my rooms in spotless order, grilling a steak to a turn, was a fair hand with a needle, and spent his spare time in producing the most artistic wood carving I have ever seen.

"Well, and what is it?" I asked him; for he seemed in some hesitation.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Phillips, sir," he said, "but there's a young man would like to see you. A most respectable young man, sir, as lodges above us on the third floor, but—"

"Go on, Jacob, go on."

"The fact is, sir, he's from the Yard."

"The Yard! What Yard?"

"Scotland Yard, sir, where the detectives come from."

"And where I wish to Heaven they would remain, thought I."

This intrusion was simply insufferable. I had a mind to refuse the man admittance.

"Is boots is quite clean," said Jacob, entirely mistaking my hesitation.

"E'as wiped 'em on the mat. I saw 'em."

"Oh, show him in."

"The person, sir, of the name of Inspector Peace," said Hendry, swinging open the door.

He was a tiny slip of a fellow, of about five and thirty years of age. A stubble of brown hair, a hard, clean-shaven mouth, and a confident chin—such was my impression. He took one quick look at me, and then waited, with his eyes on the carpet and his head a trifle tilted over the right shoulder.

"I fear that I have taken a great liberty, Mr. Phillips," he said, in a very smooth and civil manner. "But I had an idea that you would help me, and time was of importance."

"Well, and what is it?"

"You have many friends amongst the foreign artists here in London. You attend their concerts and sometimes even their little dances. We are near neighbors, you see," he concluded, with a slight bow.

"I am flattered by the interest you have taken in my movements."

"Two hours ago," he continued cheerfully, "a body was found in a passage off Leman street. Stepmay—a body which we cannot identify. The man was of good position, a sculptor, and I believe, a Pole. A cab is waiting at the door. It is late, I know, Mr. Phillips; it cannot fail to be a great personal inconvenience; but will you drive down with me and take a look at him?"

"Certainly not."

He saw that I considered his proposal an impertinence, for he hesitated a moment, regarding me with an air of depression.

"It has stopped raining," he said, "and the cab has most comfortable cushions. I noticed a fur coat in the hall which can be slipped on in a moment. May I fetch it for you?"

"You merely waste time, Mr. Peace," I told him, "I will have nothing to do with an affair in which I am nowise concerned."

"This sculptor may be an acquaintance of your own," he said gravely; "and while we are arguing his murderers may escape."

"Murderers?"

"Yes, sir, murderers! The man has been strangled and robbed."

The position was most embarrassing. He asked me to go into a part of London that I had always carefully avoided. It was sufficient to know that filth, immorality, and crime exist without personally inspecting the muckheap. Yet, there he stood, his

"I shall probably be able to prove my words in twenty-four hours."

"And why not now?"

"There are good reasons."

"Oh, very well," I said sulkily; and we drove on through the night in silence.

He left me at my door amid polite assurances that I should not again be troubled in the matter. I told him quite frankly that I was very glad to hear it.

I did not sleep more than eight hours that night, and was quite unfitted for work in the morning. I roamed about my studio with nerves on edge. I cursed Peace and all his doings. Even the papers gave me no further information of this exasperating business, being loaded with the preparations for the czar's reception in Paris, which was due in two days.

In the end I sank so far as to send old Jacob up to the inspector's rooms for the latest news; but he had been out since daybreak.

About twelve I wandered off to the club. The sight of Talman was a very present joy to me. He was engaged in denouncing the police to a select circle, choosing as his text that the Englishman's house in his castle. I offered my sincere sympathy when he told me that he had been invaded at one in the morning by inquiring detectives. I suggested that he should write to the Times about it. He said he had already done so. Incidentally he mentioned that Amaroff's address had been No. 21 Harden place.

I lunched at the little table by the window; but it was in the smoking-room afterwards that the idea occurred to me. I fought against it for some time, but the temptation increased upon consideration. Finally I yielded, and told the waiter to call a cab. I would myself have a look at the dead man's studio.

I dismissed the hansom at the turning off King's road, and walked down Harden place on foot. It was an eddy in the rush of London improvement—a pool of silence in its roaring traffic. There were trees in the little gardens. The golds and browns of the withering leaves peeped and rustled over the old brick walls. Several studios I noticed—it was evidently an artists' quarter—before I stopped in front of No. 21.

The studio—a fair-sized barn of modern brick—fronted on the street. The double doors through which a sculptor's larger work may pass were flanked by a little side door painted a staring and most objectionable green.

On the right the roof of a red-tiled shed crept up to long windows under the eaves. The side door stood ajar—a most urgent invitation to my curiosity. After all, I argued, a studio remains a place where the strict rules of etiquette may be avoided, even though its owner be dead. And so, without troubling further in the matter, I pushed the door gently open, and walked into a short passage, the further end of which was barred with heavy curtains of faded plush. Beyond them I could hear a whisper of voices. I drew back the edge of a curtain and peeped within.

In the center of the big room was a tall pedestal upon which was set the bust of Nero, which had won no small measure of fame for poor Amaroff in that year's Academy. Under the proud and merciless features of the Roman Emperor stood Inspector Peace—smoking a cigarette and talking to a big fellow with a thick black beard.

A couple of men kneeling at their feet were replacing a mass of loose papers in the drawers of a roller-top desk that had been pulled some distance from the wall.

I was just about to announce myself, when one of the men knocked over a brass candlestick which stood on the desk, so that it rolled to the further side. With a grunt of annoyance, he stepped leisurely round and dropped on his knees to recover it. Once out of sight of his companions, however, he whipped out a square of wax from his pocket, and with extraordinary rapidity took an impression from a key that he had kept concealed in his hand. It was all over in five seconds, and from the shelter the desk gave to him, no one but myself could have been the wiser. He rose, replaced the candlestick, and continued his work.

Whether the fellow had played his companion a trick or not, I had no desire to be caught acting the spy. So, pulling the curtains aside, I walked into the room. They all turned quickly upon me, the black-bearded man staring hard as if attempting to recall my face. But Peace was the first to speak.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Phillips," he said, as if I were a visitor he had expected. "You are just in time to drive me back. Have you a cab waiting?"

"No," I hesitated.

"It's of no consequence. We can find another at the top of the street. And now, Mr. Nicolin," he continued, turning to the big man, who had never taken his eyes off me, "are you quite satisfied, or do you wish your men to make a further search?"

"No, Mr. Inspector," he answered, with a heavy foreign accent, "we are quite content. Nothing more is necessary."

"Shall you be wanting to come again?"

OLIVE OIL.

Under the Pure Food Law all oil made from olives is pure olive oil, yet there is as much difference in olive oil as there is in butter.

Cheap olive oil is made from olives that through cause of decay, insects or storms fall to the ground. Sound, healthy olives stay on the trees until ripe, like our apples. They are then gathered, the oil pressed without heat. This is virgin olive oil. The second pressing is obtained with steam and hot water, which is known as fine table oil. The rich flavor and medicinal properties are found only in the virgin oil which is of a greenish-yellow color. It is very nutritious. Used in nervous diseases is a mild laxative; has a great reputation as a remedy for stones in the bladder, and is a skin food and complexion beautifier through its action on the liver. The supply of this virgin oil is always limited. It is quickly bought up for medicinal purposes and found only in drug stores.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, personally tests our olive oil. You are therefore positive of obtaining the true virgin oil imported direct from Southern France. We sell it at 40c one-half pint, 75c a full pint bottle. Get it at our store, The Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee & River streets. The Drug Store that makes a specialty of Drugs.

Convenient Shoe Horns.

A problem which has agitated the feminine mind for some time has been successfully solved at last. A way in which women may reach their feet unaided, even though corseted, comes to relieve those who are overburdened with obesity. How is this feat accomplished? It's simple if one possesses one of the new shoe horns which have a three-foot wooden handle attached to the horn. This novelty is imported and though the price may seem high, the relief purchased with one of these toilet accessories is certainly worth the price.

Ungallant Man.

It is rather an ungallant man who advocates women's suffrage on the theory that it will not make any real difference.—Washington Star.

How Opium is Secured.

Opium is got by cutting the capsule of the poppy flower with a notched iron instrument at sunrise, and by the next morning a drop or so of juice has oozed out. This is scraped off and saved by the grower, and after he has a vessel full of it, it is strained and dried. It takes a great many poppies to make a pound of opium, and it goes through a number of processes before it is ready for the market. In a liquid state it looks like dark strawberry jam.

When the World is Wrong.

If the flavor has gone out of things, if you cannot catch happiness, if you are out of tune with yourself or with your world, for the sake of everyone concerned take yourself in hand quickly.—A. K. Fallows.

A Beggar's Luggage.

When Bridget Flanagan, who described herself as "a poor lone Irish widow woman," was arrested for begging at Wells she had the following articles distributed about her person: Tea, sugar, fresh cut beefsteak, piece of bacon, three bloaters, bread and cheese, four buns, bag of biscuits, cooked fagot, two apples, onions, two clay pipes, tobacco, cigarettes and snuff.—London Evening Standard.

Uplifting Power of the Press.

"It (the press) lifts us out of the local rut and gives us the broader spirit and intelligence of common citizens of a great country. Still further, it extends our sympathies beyond natural bounds and gives us the feeling of human solidarity."—Dr. Albert Shaw.

Quickly Cures The Worst Backache

New Remedy Makes Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, and Rheumatic Pains Disappear, as if By Magic.

It is no longer necessary for anyone to suffer with backaching, kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders to contend with, or be tortured with rheumatism, stiff joints, and its heart-wrenching pains, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely cures all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acid and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of removing the cause, Piles, tablets, and other remedies at the best, merely stimulate the kidneys, giving temporary relief. Croxone cleans out the poisons.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys soft and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy, and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back, and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder troubles, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

His reply was ingenious, and I liked the inspector the better for it. The man had something more in him than a civil tongue and a pleasing manner.

"Tell me—what else did you learn?"

"That he was murdered in a place with a sanded floor, probably at no great distance from Leman street, seeing that they carried him there on a custer's barrow."

"I am not a reporter," I said. "I do not want guess-work."
